GOVERNOR AT ELIOT TOWN CENTENNIAL

GOVERNOR BERT M. FERNALD

A. B. COLE,
President of the Day

Centennial Address and Other Exercises of this Afternoon

Eliot, Me., Aug. 10.—Tuesday, the third day of Eliot's old home week and celebration of the centennial of the incorporation of the town, proved a success as to weather and program, and the rest of the week promises to be equally as successful, if the weather is favorable.

Tuesday Afternoon at Green Acre
As told in yesterday's news, Tuesday was Green Acre day and the program was provided at Green Acre on the Piscataqua under the auspices of the Green Acre Fellowship. A large audience gathered for the afternoon exercises and overflowed the big tent so that many had to sit on the grass outside. And it was an attentive audience which listened to the program given under the direction of Miss Cella Richmond, secretary of the Green Acre Fellowship, and Professor Horatio W. Dresser of Cambridge.

The first number was a solo by the gifted young Boston soprano, Miss Millicent Melrose, who sang "O Dry Those Tears" by Del Rigo. Miss Melrose also sang after the oration, her closing selection being Verdi's "Volta in Terra." Her accompaniments were played by Miss Mabel Stone of Boston.

Professor Charles Zuehlke of Winchester, Mass., formerly of Chicago University, the noted sociologist, lived up to his reputation as an orator, as he told of the sharing of trials and hopes, ambitions and disappointments, sorrows and joys, and of the possibilities of helpfulness, one for another, in "The Fellowship of the Common Life." The heroism in patience and joyfulness and the unselfishness in fretfulness and fractiousness were strikingly depicted.

Following the oration and solo, a recess was taken, during which the big tent was skillfully taken down and moved to the William Fogg Library lot where it will be used in connection with the exercises of today and Thursday.

The folk dances, "Maypole," "Brownie Polka," "Bean Porridge," "Chimes of Dunkirk," were given by sixteen young women in European peasant costume, as told yesterday. These dances are practically unknown here, though analogous in folk lore to the familiar "On the Green Carpet." They were eagerly watched by the spectators, who found them to be something both pretty and novel.

The "Luby Lu," a child's dance, was given by seven little folks, as told yesterday.

A Pleasant Tuesday Evening
A reception and dance was tendered at the Green Acre Fellowship on Tuesday evening by the Green Acre Fellowship to their Eliot friends, and drew the second large throng of the day to Green Acre.

Miss Lord, Miss Richmond and Professor Dresser of the Green Acre Fellowship and Secretary A. B. Cole of the town's centennial committee were in the receiving line, and Mr. M. P. Tobey of the town's committee introduced the citizens. Following this pleasant ceremony dancing opened, with music by C. B. Hoyt, violinist, and Ralph S. Parker, pianist, of Portsmouth.

The floor director was Mr. Wm. W. Locke of Rock Ridge school, Wellsley Hills, Mass.

At an intermission, Miss Stone played a "Paraphrase" by Rigoletto, and a "Folclore" by McDowell on the piano. The "Brownie Polka," "Bean Porridge," "Chimes of Dunkirk" and "Luby Lu" dances were repeated, to the delight of all.

At another intermission, readings were given by Mrs. Charlotte Sully Presby, president of the New York school of Expression.

At half past ten, the party broke up, the Eliot citizens and visitors heartily thanking the Green Acre people for the evening of pleasure.

Suppose You Eat in The Same Fashion That You Cook!

Put the soup in the sideboard, the salt on the table, the bread in the bottom of the china closet, the butter on a chair in the corner of the room.

Arrange every course in a similar way, and then between bites of bread in one corner, you sip your soup in the other.

Stand up during the entire meal and walk back and forth for each mouthful.

Do you think you will enjoy the meal?

Yet your cooking can be grouped as compactly and conveniently as your eating.

A Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet enables you to sit down and do all your kitchen work comfortably with the things you need at your fingers' ends.

CHANGES AT PAPER MILL

Making Preparations for Residence of a Company Official

Rumors in connection with the operation of the Colonial Paper company's plant at Freeman's point have it that the beautiful office building erected by the original owners of the plant will be converted into a dwelling and will later be occupied by one of the resident officials of the new company.

Following this change it is also said that a new headquarters for the clerical force will be established in one of the other buildings there.

Elwell to Run for Representative

Charles W. Young Died
Suddenly

A Socialist Rally Held in the Public Square

Exeter, Aug. 10.—Hon. Rufus N. Elwell has filed nomination papers for Republican candidacy for representative to the legislature.

Charles W. Young, one of the oldest and respected residents, died very suddenly on Tuesday afternoon at his home on the Hall place. He was on the street during the early afternoon apparently as well as usual. He was born here 86 years ago and spent his entire life as a resident, following the vocation of carpenter and contractor. Three children survive him, a daughter, Mrs. Albert S. Wetherell, and George H., both of this town, and Charles W. Young of Laconia, who is the oldest. The funeral services will be held Thursday.

At the special meeting of the Moses N. Collins post of the G. A. R., it was voted to hold the meetings in Red Men's Hall, the same place where the Women's Relief corps meets. This arrangement will be in progress until some other arrangements can be made for the veterans, who have lost their former quarters.

Miss Minnie Kimball left Tuesday for a visit with friends in South Wolfboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Palmer of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dawson of Milton, who are summering at Hedding, were visitors here on Tuesday.

The easy way to wash clothes.

Take a cake of Lenox Soap, cut it into small pieces and dissolve these in three quarts of boiling water. Keep at boiling point until a solution is formed.

This solution will do better work than soap—and without any waste.

Rub the soap solution on the soiled parts, fold and roll each piece separately, pack in a tub, cover with warm soapy water, let stand overnight, and in the morning you will find that the really hard work of washing—the rubbing on the washboard—is not half as hard as usual.

Roger J. Wilson of Boston has returned after a brief visit with friends here.

In police court on Tuesday an itinerant by the name of John Hayes was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness. He gave his residence as South Boston and he reached this town some time Monday forenoon.

He, however, made the mistake by asking Policeman Irving Hupner, who was in plain clothes, for ten cents, and with the demand gave some uncalled-for remarks. The officer pulled him into his team by the collar, and landed him in the lockup. It was plain that John was intoxicated, and acting rather obnoxious. When the jag was passing off he wept piteously in the cell and told a plausible story. As the offense was a minor one, the judge gave him his freedom, with some good advice, and told him to leave town.

The two-masted schooner James H. Maloy of Bath, Me., was towed into position at the wharf of the McKeel company on Monday afternoon, where she dropped anchor after a series of mishaps on her way up the swamscott river from Portsmouth. She left the seaport city and the incoming tide Sunday morning and reached Newfields about 2.30 p. m., where she ran on to the sand bars near Ordway's Point, only a short distance from the Newmarket and Stratham bridge. The tugboat Iva soon succeeded in getting her started, but the sea craft soon ran aground again, and she was compelled to remain there for a half hour at least, and then getting started only to strike the sand bars again about a half mile near Exeter nearly off what is known as Woodchuck Point. As the tide had reached its ebb and was fast gaining, the captain thought it best to remain over a tide, which would require spending the night. The tug boat in the meantime steamed back to Portsmouth. At high tide Monday afternoon it returned, and finished its journey to this town, with the Maloy in tow, and put her into position at the coal wharf.

There was a spirited socialist rally Tuesday evening on the square in front of the town hall, when Wilson B. Killenbeck, a candidate for governor of New Jersey on the socialist ticket, gave an address to many. His subject was "Socialism According to President Taft." The socialists of this town turned out in full proportions, and his audience was large, including many affiliated with other parties.

At Lanier Camp

"The Practice of Christianity" was the subject of a most interesting talk by Rev. C. W. Duffield of Boston at the Sunday afternoon services in the Pine Grove at Lanier camp. A fitting close for the day was an excellent presentation of "Robert of Sicily," by the junior boys, under the direction of Miss Julie Dulan. In the camp living room. A happy selection of vocal music rendered by Miss Cornelia Walter of Baltimore added much to the pleasure of the evening.

The tennis court is now ready for use and will claim its share of attention with baseball and field sports in camp athletics.

Walking parties are always popular, and on Monday afternoon twenty of the older members of the camp joined Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harwood and the senior girls for a tramp to Frost Hill three miles distant. A picnic supper was enjoyed before returning to camp.

Miss Nettie C. Doud of Springfield, Ill., is spending two weeks at the camp.

DOVER DOINGS

Dover, Aug. 10.—A serious accident occurred here Tuesday when John Casey, an employee of the Sawyer mills of the American Woolen company, was drawn into one of the pickers in the picker room and was very severely injured. Casey was operating one of the machines when he caught his right hand, and before the heavy machinery could be stopped the entire arm was drawn in and torn from the socket. His right side came in contact with the machinery and was badly bruised and lacerated. Word was immediately forwarded to Dr. George A. Tolman. When the physician arrived, the injured man lay upon the floor, wrapped in sheets and gagging, bleeding profusely from his wounds to such an extent that the doctor had some trouble in stopping the flow. As soon as possible the sufferer was taken to the Wentworth hospital in Glidden & Glidden's ambulance, where he was placed upon the dangerous list. Mr. Casey, the victim of the accident, resides in Barham and Demeritt's court, and has a wife and five children.

SUCCESS IN THE NAVY

History of Chief Wireless Operator on the Wisconsin

An illustration of the advantages open to the youth who hustles in the navy, is plainly apparent in the case of B. J. Murphy, chief wireless telegrapher of the U. S. S. Wisconsin, who retires this week from duty.

Young Murphy entered the service three years ago. He enlisted as an apprentice electrician. The salary was small and the work hard. Within the three years he mastered wireless telegraphy, the construction of instruments and the method of sending and receiving messages. He graduated through the various grades to the position he now occupies, which is that of a chief petty officer. His salary is considerably more than $100 a month and his food and sleeping place are provided by the government. Murphy probably will re-enter the service after a vacation.

AT MUSIC HALL

Mr. Al Reynard the monologist and character change artist, who is at the Portsmouth Theatre, this week, is attracting special attention by his clever act and is considered one of the best seen on our stage for a long time. He puts so much energy into his work that he is able to hold the closest attention of his audiences and keeps them enthusiastic from the beginning to the end of the performance. His song hits evoked rounds of applause. Mr. Reynard closes his engagement here tonight.

Details of Murderous Attack by an Ex-City Employee

MAYOR GAYNOR

Bullet Not Extracted,
but He Rests Quietly

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 10.—This morning it was announced that Mayor William J. Gaynor, who was shot by James Gallagher, a discharged city employee, on board the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse as he was starting for his vacation in Europe, is resting comfortably. After an X-ray examination of the wound in his head the doctors decided not to operate for the present.

The bullet after entering the back of the head split into two parts. The wound is not necessarily fatal, but it is an extremely dangerous one to a man of Gaynor's age. The doctors state that in their opinion unless blood poisoning should set in the mayor will recover. Much anxiety is felt, for a turn for the worse in his condition would cause grave alarm.

The shooting took place on the forward promenade deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse on which Gaynor was about to embark for a month's vacation. It was witnessed by scores of men and women and many of the latter became hysterical.

The bullet entered the right side of Gaynor's neck, taking a downward and forward course. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, in an ambulance.

Mayor Gaynor never lost consciousness and gave directions to those about him after the shooting. He surprised those at his bedside by waking up last night and asking for something to eat.

Story of the Shooting
Twenty minutes before the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was due to leave her pier in Hoboken Gallagher walked up to where Gaynor was standing on the forward part of the promenade deck exchanging farewell greetings with friends and members of his official family, placed the muzzle of a .38-caliber revolver about twelve inches from the back of Gaynor's head and pulled the trigger.

The first cartridge failed to explode, but the second bullet entered the mayor's neck just back of the right ear. Gallagher then turned the weapon on Robert Adamson, secretary to Gaynor, but Adamson knocked the assassin's hand in the air and upset his balance.

Before he could recover his footing, the powerful fist of "Big Bill" Edwards, the former football giant and head of the street cleaning department, shot out and caught him flush between the eyes, and in another instant he was squirming on the deck under Edwards' massive form. As Edwards and Gallagher went to the deck the latter tried to pull the trigger of his revolver twice again, one of the bullets plowing through the fleshy part of Edwards' left arm and going wild.

The actual shooting was done in a few seconds and it was not until the persons who had been watching the group of officials saw Gaynor stagger and fall into the arms of those around him and saw the struggling form of his would-be slayer on the deck that they realized what had happened.

Conscious and Calm
Passengers on the promenade deck surged toward the spot where Gaynor, a deathly pallor on his face, was calmly giving directions to the excited ones about him. When the bullet struck him Gaynor placed his right hand against the wound, swayed back and forth, but did not fall. Benjamin C. Marsh and Adamson caught him on either side and supported him.

"Get somebody," said the mayor, turning to his secretary. This was all he said as he was led toward his stateroom on the starboard side of the boat, about 100 feet away.

Someone suggested that they carry him, but Gaynor said he was strong enough to make the journey on foot. Officers of the ship opened up a passageway through the horrified crowd, and as Gaynor came in sight, with his collar and shirt dyed a deep crimson, many women screamed.

"Who shot me?" asked the wounded official as tender hands lifted him on a couch and Dr. Lederle, head of the health department, and Dr. Meyer, the ship's physician, proceeded to make a hurried examination. No one was able to give him any information because no one had been able to identify Gallagher as a former city employee, and Gallagher did not make known his identity until he reached police headquarters in Hoboken.

"Isn't it a pity?" The mayor was told it was the act of a drunk, and he said: "Isn't it a pity?" Up to a late hour last night he had not asked for the name of the man who shot him, and those around his bedside did not volunteer the information.

The physicians made Gaynor comfortable until the arrival of an ambulance from St. Mary's hospital. Gaynor was placed on a stretcher and carried down the gangplank through a lane of tear-stained faces. His head was swathed in bandages and his face was hidden from the throng which pressed about the ambulance.

One hour from the time of the shooting the injured official was on the operating table. The mayor displayed remarkable fortitude throughout, and only once gave those about him the impression that he thought his wound was fatal. When they were bearing him down the gangplank to the ambulance he smiled faintly through his bandages and said: "Tell the people good-by."

Many Messages of Sympathy
News of the attempted assassination plunged the city and a large part of the country in grief. Messages of sympathy were sent to the mayor's office by President Taft, Theodore Roosevelt, Governor Hughes and other officials prominent in the life of the nation. These messages poured in from all parts of the country, and the hospital officials were besieged over the telephone for details as to the mayor's condition.

Cablegrams of sympathy were received from all parts of the world, proving that the most remote places have kept in touch with Gaynor's work at the city hall.

At the time of the shooting Gaynor was surrounded by half a dozen members of his official family. Rufus W. Gaynor, his son, was the only member of his family present. He had intended taking the trip with his father.

Gallagher was arrested and arraigned before Recorder McGovern charged with having committed an "atrocious assault with intent to kill." He declined to plead and was locked up in the county jail in Jersey City to await the result of Gaynor's injuries.

Gallagher is 58 years of age and had been employed as a watchman in the dock department for seven years. He appeared to be sober when arrested, and was at all times collected.

Gallagher's Confession.
Gallagher made the following signed confession of his act to Robert W. Bell, acting chief of police of Hoboken:

"I came over to Hoboken at 9:20 this morning. I went to the steamship pier, and I went on board the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. I met a clergyman on board of the steamer and I asked him to point out Mayor Gaynor to me. He did so, and shortly after I fired a shot at the mayor. I do not know if I fired more than one shot or not.

"Knowing that Mayor Gaynor was going to Europe to enjoy himself after depriving me of my bread and butter, I shot him. I was not a porter-house steak, I was irritated to the point of committing the act. The revolver you show me is the revolver that I did the shooting at the mayor with. I don't know how many shots were in the revolver when I used it. I have had this revolver a long time in my possession. I carried it when I was in the employ of the city."

Gallagher seemed remarkably cool while making this statement, to which he affixed his signature.

Detective Sergeant Closter arrived at the house 444 Third avenue and, accompanied by Mrs. Sophie Johnson, Gallagher's landlady, went at once to Gallagher's room. The room, which is a small one on the third floor, was much littered up. A number of medicine bottles were in evidence and it was clear that Gallagher had spent much of his time recently in drinking the newspapers. It was said in the neighborhood that Gallagher had been drinking a good deal of late, and rumor had it that he had lost $300 on the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Inspector Russell is to take charge of the case against Gallagher.

Gallagher was appointed a watchman in the New York city dock department April 7, 1903. He was discharged July 19, 1910, after having been found guilty of neglect of duty and misconduct.

In Gallagher's possession was found a letter which doubtless was the direct incentive for the shooting. It is dated Aug. 4 at the mayor's office and is addressed to Gallagher at his Third avenue residence. It reads:

"Dear Sir—The mayor has instructed me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st inst., and to state that he can do nothing for you in the matter of which you write."

The letter is signed by Secretary Robert Adamson.

According to persons who know Gallagher and the circumstances surrounding his discharge from the dock department, he considered his downfall the result of a "frame-up" on the part of Tammany Hall politicians. Late in April Gallagher wrote an anonymous letter to Raymond B. Foadick, commissioner of accounts, which caused charges to be brought against Richard H. Lee, the dockmaster, a brother-in-law of Philip Donahue, Tammany's treasurer. Both men at that time lived in the "Gas House" district. It was also said that the letter had been stolen from Commissioner Foadick's office and the writing traced to Gallagher and that he had admitted the authorship.

Gaynor's Eventful Career

William J. Gaynor was born at Whitestown, N. Y., in 1851, the son of a farmer, the Gaynor family being of English-Irish stock. He was educated at Whitestown seminary, and later at Boston, and intended in youth, it is said, to enter the priesthood of the Roman Catholic church, even going so far as to begin his studies under the Christian Brothers. He taught school in Boston, and afterward took up the study of law in Utica, removing to Brooklyn in 1873, to continue his studies. While so doing he engaged in newspaper work. He was admitted to the bar in 1875, and went to live in Flatbush, then a separate community, in the control of corrupt politicians.

He soon became immersed in local politics in Flatbush, taking the initiative in many reforms, of which he made a personal success. Later he moved to Brooklyn, which was then dominated politically by the McLaughlin ring.

Mr. Gaynor learned that the ring had bought the Long Island water supply company for $185,000 and had contracted to sell it to the city for $1,500,000. He exposed the graft through a taxpayer's suit, and to the consternation of the ring, the swindle that would have netted them $1,300,000 was frustrated after the case had been taken to the highest court.

In 1893 Brooklyn became aroused at the corruption of the John V. McKane contingent. McKane was chief of police. The nomination for mayor was tendered to Gaynor. He declined, but later accepted the nomination as a justice of the supreme court, to strengthen the ticket and help elect Schieren for mayor.

As soon as Gaynor became a justice he went right after McKane, with the result that McKane was sentenced to state prison for seven years, and sixteen of his associates were also imprisoned.

When Alton B. Parker was running for president an effort was made to get Gaynor to run for governor. He would not encourage the suggestion. Richard Croker, it is said, once tried to get Gaynor to accept the Tammany nomination for mayor of the enlarged city, but he declined.

Mr. Gaynor was elected mayor of New York in 1909. He was the candidate of Tammany Hall. His home is at 20 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn.

HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Remington Would Still Be Free Had He Not Confessed

Boston, Aug. 10.—William R. Remington, the morphia fiend and self-accused murderer of Max Sorokien, a Harrison avenue grocer, was arraigned in the municipal court on the charge of murder. He was held for a hearing without bail for Aug. 17. Chief Dugan believes that the man is telling the truth. Dugan said that Remington had gone four times to Tewksbury to be treated for the drug habit.

The chief declared that the verdict of Medical Examiner Waters and the Boston police that Sorokien had committed suicide had been entirely justified from what they could learn of the case. He said: "If I had a similar case I would be compelled to declare it suicide for want of a clue that would warrant anything else."

SHERMAN IS EXONERATED

His Name Is Completely
Cleared by Gore

HE PRODUCES TELEGRAM

It Alludes to Vice President and Kansas Senator and Is Introduced, Gore Explains, Merely to Show Activity of McMurray Interests at Washington—Hamon Says Creager Bought Money From McMurray

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 10.—At the congressional committee's investigation of Indian land sales Tuesday, Senator Gore explained that he completely exonerated Vice President Sherman from any connection with the case.

Congressman Creager was accused at the hearing of having sought money from Attorney McMurray after he had introduced a bill providing for the sale of Indian lands.

The charge was made by Jake L. Hamon, who, in demanding the recall of Creager to the witness stand, declared Creager had made his pleas for money in the guise of loans and that he wished to cross-examine the witness.

The names of Senator Curtis of Kansas and Vice President Sherman were again mentioned during the hearing when a telegram to Richard C. Adams, an attorney at Washington, from George Scott, McMurray's agent among the Indians, was read.

Senator Gore immediately explained that he wanted it understood that he was not trying to drag the names of Curtis and Sherman into the matter and exonerated them of any connection with the case.

"I have produced this telegram," he said, "merely to explain how influence was sought in Washington by men who in private correspondence mentioned the names of Curtis and Sherman."

After Gore made his statement regarding not trying to drag Sherman and Curtis into the case Dennis Flynn, attorney for McMurray, asked:

"Do I understand Gore exonerates Sherman and Curtis?"

"I think the records have shown that I have stated that," replied Gore. "It has been shown their names were taken in vain once and it may have occurred again."

The telegram causing the sensation read:

"With McMurray there to stake out claims with Mr. Curtis and Mr. Sherman, who understand better than anybody else what we want, and with the assistance of our president it begins to look like we are coming into our own."

This telegram was dated at Kinta, Okla., May 2 last. Its relation to Gore's charges of having been offered a $25,000 bribe to "put through" Congress the $30,000,000 McMurray Indian land deal was explained by the senator. "It merely shows the activity of the McMurray interests at Washington," said Gore.

Another telegram from McMurray at Washington was read. It ordered that McMurray's agent among the Indians send fifty telegrams urging Congress to approve the contracts allowing $3,000,000 "attorney's fees."

WARNING IS REPEATED

Soldiers in Nicaragua Must Not Invade Property of Americans

Washington, Aug. 10.—Invasion of American property in Nicaragua by soldiers of Madriz has called forth a formal protest from the United States. The state department has repeated its ultimatum to both factions in Nicaragua that American property must be protected. The situation of the Madriz government is precarious, according to state department reports.

The Madriz soldiers have been invading the property of Americans, impressing laborers and appropriating provisions again, according to the state department advices from Consular Agent Desavigny at Matagalpa.

PROPOSITION IS DROPPED

International Conservation, One of
"My Policies," Pronounced Dead

Washington, Aug. 10.—Former President Roosevelt's proposition to make conservation a world-wide movement by a conference of nations was pronounced officially by the state department to be dead.

Of the forty-nine governments, represented diplomatically in Washington, which were invited just before the former president went out of office to join the movement, only nineteen have replied.

The answer of some of the governments were of such a disinterested character that it was officially decided to carry the proposal no further.

Must Keep Out of Saloons

Denver, Aug. 10.—An order has been issued by the local authorities prohibiting Salvation Army women entering saloons to solicit aid and sell their literature, on the theory that the practice is demoralizing, as the girls are thrown into temptation.

NOTORIOUS CROOK ESCAPES FROM JAIL

Sheddy Probably Had an Automobile Waiting For Him

Hartford, Aug. 10.—An automobile was heard to pass the county jail just before midnight and Sheriff Dewey entertains the belief that this was the vehicle used in aiding the escape of Timothy A. Shedy, the notorious burglar. The prisoner was under a thirty years' sentence, but as there is no room for more prisoners in the state prison he was being held in the county jail.

Shedy cut the steel bars of his cell, made his way through the corridor toward the north end of the prison and then passed through the hospital. There James Carroll, a short-term prisoner, had sawed the bars from a window. Shedy and Carroll then made their escape. The escape was made between the rounds of the watchman. Before the street was reached a ten-foot fence was scaled.

In a letter received by the charities department Mrs. Donnelly says that New York must settle the bill.

General Alarm Sounded In Hub For
Period of Fourteen Years

Boston, Aug. 10.—One million and five hundred thousand dollars' worth of property on Albany street—the "lumber district"—was wiped out last night, seventeen firemen were injured and the entire South End, with its thickly settled tenement district, was threatened for hours, by the worst fire in this city since the Kingston street fire in 1889.

While the entire department of Boston was fighting the Albany street fire, thirty-three pieces of apparatus from twelve outside cities grappled with a four alarm fire that destroyed a big manufacturing plant of W. H. Jones-Maddeville Asbestos company at 55 High street.

The newly installed metropolitan fire system, calling in aid from every outside city within a radius of fifteen miles, was used for the first time. The fire protection concentrated by this system was taxed to its utmost not merely to cover the city, but to check the spread of the two big fires that raged at the same time in two different parts of the city.

The Albany street fire, which the Boston department checked after it had eaten into 100 tenements and destroyed all the buildings and lumber on the west side of Albany street from Dover to Randolph street, and all the property east of Albany street to the South Cove, was the first general alarm fire since the Pope Manufacturing company fire on Columbus avenue in '96.

WAS IT A DELUSION?

It is refreshing to watch the progress of publishers with push. The Sunday American printed the picture of Editor Fernando W. Hartford as a representative of the "Harriman lines" in the notable assemblage of railroad attorneys—People and Patriot.

The joke must be on us, as the edition of the American for this section did not contain the picture. Gee, but wouldn't I like the job.

POLITICS AND WOMAN

Mrs. Marilla M. Ricker of New Hampshire is not the only woman who is trying to make a disturbance in politics.

It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that a woman may knock at the doors of Congress in two years, and demand admittance to all the rights and privileges that have been accorded exclusively to men since the foundation of the government. The women of Colorado have put forward Mrs. Katherine Williamson as candidate for congress. The full right of suffrage is granted to women in that state. On learning that the increase in population probably entitled the state to another representative the women "got busy" and announced that one of their sex would be elected to the job. Mrs. Williamson holds the position at present of state factory inspector and has established a reputation for faithful service. She is about thirty-seven years of age, is said to have the genius of making new and holding old friends and generally to be very popular. It has been observed that the women of Colorado vote pretty much as a unit when it comes to important matters, so Mrs. Williamson's election is quite possible.

Suppose she should be elected, what would the house of representatives do about it? There are plenty of precedents for admitting a person whom the other members would like to keep out, and the case of Brigham H. Roberts, the Mormon polygamist, affords a precedent for refusal to admit a person who appears technically to fit the constitutional requirements.

The Constitution of the United States says, "No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained the age of twenty-five years and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen." It will be noted that the pronoun "he" is used in designating the sex of representatives. Of course, the builders of the Constitution had no thought that the time would ever come that women might be elected to the office of representative. If Mrs. Williamson should be elected, how would congress interpret the pronoun? Each house of congress has the sole power to judge the qualifications of its members.

The question may not arise, but Mrs. Williamson would seem to be within sight of congress.

A peculiar feature of the situation is that they propose to send her to congress because she is a woman, and not as the advocates of either side of any of the political issues before the people.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

The qualifications of Ellis When you cast a vote for Hon. Bert ram Ellis of Keene, for governor, you are doing your full duty by yourself, your town, and your state. He is a man of wide experience, bound down by no ring or clique, and a free and impartial officer wherever placed.—Claremont Eagle.

Cause for Doubt

The Manchester Union may be able to make itself believe that practically everybody in New Hampshire is enthusiastic for the nomination of Mr. Bass, but folks whose memory goes back over the last two state campaigns, and who remember the extravagant claims which the Union made every morning for Pillsbury and for Churchill, will perhaps be excusable if they do not accept the Union's doctored political news at its face value.—Laconia Democrat.

Political Assassination in America

Such deeds of violence are unhappily altogether too frequent. Unlike the Old World, our attempted assassinations are rarely identified with any great cause or issue; they usually reflect a personal grievance, as in the case of Guileau and of Gallagher, who shot Gaynor, or else they are the insane acts of a wild-eyed defective like Czolgosz or of Pendergast, who assassinated the elder Carter Harrison just as the World's Fair in Chicago was closing. The nearest to an assassination in behalf of a cause was that of Abraham Lincoln, and yet the Southern people were quick to disown that Booth was acting in any representative capacity, and in spite of the foolish attempts of Stanton to make it so appear by involving Confederate leaders in the dastardly affair no one now regards Booth's act as having had any background of general support. The assassination of Goebel in Kentucky and of Senator Carmack in Tennessee, on the other hand, grew directly out of the heated politics of that section and out of the rather free practices of the neighborhood in the use of firearms. The old idea that popular elective rulers need not stand in fear of violence which governed the relations of our executive officers to the people for a century, has now been pretty generally abandoned. The president of the United States is now as effectively guarded as it is possible for a man to be who desires to go about among his fellows. Most of the capricious of finance, warned by some lessons of the past, are also accompanied by private detectives. It is only a question of time when governors and mayors generally will see the wisdom of taking the same precaution. A prominent executive officer is so shining a mark for the notoriety-seeking "muds" as to make the risk very considerable. To the extent that it can be minimized by reasonable precautions, there should clearly be taken.—Boston Transcript.

Called the Life Savers

Lady Made Mistake and Hoisted the Flag "Union Down"

The friends of a well known lady residing on South street are having a good hearty laugh at her expense, and are also giving her little rest as the result of an occurrence at "Ragged Neck."

It seems that a dozen or more Portsmouth ladies enjoyed the day there last week and, upon arrival, one of the members suggested that they ought to hoist old glory to the flag staff. She volunteered to do it, and it was soon fluttering at the mast head. In an hour a member of the Wallis Sands life saving crew put in an appearance and inquired what the trouble was. It seems that the flag was up "union down" and from the life savers' patrol it looked like a signal from Rye Harbor, and the life saver was in earnest.

BUY A TAG

Now good people will you help us In a cause that is your own? We are taggers asking gayly Aid for Charity at home. Each and every one may give us Open hands will make us glad. You can help the sick and weary If you'll buy a tag.

If your purse is lean and scanty Can't you give a silver dime? If it's filled with rolls of greenbacks Give a dollar every time. It will bring a smile to faces That have long looked sad, and ill So we ask you all to help us, Buy a tag our box to fill.

Gladly give, the cause is worthy. Take a Quaker's wise advice: "Do good now, and don't defer it. Name will pass through this world twice." Wear your tag so all may see them. Never say that Portsmouth lagged. Fill our streets with joyful taggers. Everybody buy a tag.

The police register last night contained the names of two drunks and two lodgers.

GOVERNOR AT ELIOT TOWN CENTENNIAL

Y., Alfred Bartlett, Boston.

After a selection by the orchestra Governor Bert M. Fernald of Maine was introduced and made brief extemporaneous remarks of felicitation to the town.

The Centennial Address

The centennial address, delivered by Hon. James P. Baxter of Portland, president of the Maine Historical society, is approximately seven thousand words in length. It is devoted to historical matters relating to Eliot and the Piscataqua region. The features of the address are as follows:

In ancient times men were esteemed as possessing especial virtue who kept in remembrance those who had worthily served the tribe or clan. To-day we measure a community by the regard which it has for those who have wrought its development and the care in preserving its annals; therefore Eliot has adopted a custom sanctioned by the best experience in celebrating this anniversary and recalling the men and events which have contributed to its making.

While Eliot has a separate town life of a century, its real history goes back to a much earlier period. It is part of the territory conveyed under the great charter of 1606 to the North Virginia and after several changes in 1636 to Sir Ferdinando Gorges. This was a critical period, the fate of English colonization in North America hanging in the balance, depending upon the selfish aims of one of the least agreeable of English rulers. Although James had but languid interest in America he was aware of Spain's claims upon this continent as well as of the activity of France upon the St. Lawrence.

The king not only granted William Alexander some territory north of Gorges' patent, but compelled Gorges to convey to him gratis a generous fee. Gorges does not seem to have been troubled, as it gave him a buffer against the French, but he hastened to form a partnership with Mason.

In 1622 forty vessels were dispatched from England to fish or trade on the coast, and settlements were made. James thought of a marriage alliance with France, and one of the conditions in the marriage treaty proposed by the French was recognition of the French claims in North America. Buckingham, had the ear of the king, and Prince. He was unfriendly to Gorges, and jealous of Alexander. The three decided to recognize the French claims to Acadia which meant all of Nova Scotia and an indefinite portion of New England. But Gorges was a bold man and succeeded in getting the recognition postponed.

In 1632 King Charles yielded to the demands of France. It looked dark for the English settlements in New England, especially in Maine.

October 20, 1647, Piscataqua Plantation was transformed into a town and named Kittery, the oldest town in Maine. This is also the date of the death of Gorges. Two years later Charles met death on the scaffold and the Commonwealth assumed power in England. The hands of Massachusetts were strengthened and, shortly after, the scattered inhabitants of this own came under her orderly rule.

In 1653 the town erected a meeting-house and there the people gathered on the Lord's day and devoutly listened to the long sermons of that period. There were many men and women of remarkable character in this little parish. I wish that time would permit me to enumerate them, but a town which had a Shapleigh, a Chamberlain, a Curtis, a Pepperrell, in its beginning is honored indeed.

In 1676 the Indians took up the hatchet and the inhabitants were in constant alarm. There were at least eighteen garrison houses within its limits and these were often crowded. For thirty-eight years war with the savages continued. The French king had made Quebec a place of strength, and his dream was to build a stronghold at Cape Breton from which he could threaten New England. In 1744 New England was ready. Colonel William Pepperrell was given the command. The pulpit was eloquent with the subject of this holy crusade, Pepperrell, and his men, struggled nearly two months and Pepperrell marched his worn-out but exultant men into the great city. The people were not permitted to enjoy the fruit of this conquest. England made peace with France and restored Louisbourg to the French. When England again declared war against France the colonists were alert for another crusade. In 1758 the fall of Louisbourg was again joyfully proclaimed throughout New England and a few months later the capture of Quebec by Wolfe broke forever the power of France on the American continent.

It would seem that England should have taken into account the sacrifices which her colonies had made and sustained them in their efforts to recuperate. The resentment which was occasioned, manifested itself at Lexington and Bunker Hill and culminated in the surrender of Cornwall. Eliot occupied an honorable place in this great war. Her sons were at Lexington, Bunker Hill, Ticonderoga, Valley Forge, and on the Bon Homme Richard under Paul Jones.

But they had not won on the commercial field and were not freed from the state craft of the lords of trade. This town had been organized but two years when the war of 1812 opened but she responded generously to the call to arms. In 1814 the enemy threatened the coast and a meeting of the inhabitants of Eliot was called and a committee of safety and defense raised to send troops to defend the coast and to furnish their rations till the government should assume the burden.

The spell of England's heritage of slavery was strong and in the struggle to free ourselves, Eliot was generous in the offering which she laid upon the altar. So too, when Spain was forced to yield her last possessions in the New World, Eliot, as ever, responded to the call for arms, and sent her sons.

But Eliot has accomplished more in peace than in war. The white spires of her churches, the sheltering roofs of her schools, her public library—the gift of an honored son and the center of her literary life, her elm shaded streets and her sacred homes, her long roll of honored sons all testify to this, and give her rank among our typical New England towns, the like of which are not to be found elsewhere.

"THE FAILURE OF SUCCESS"
Moving Picture to Be Seen Today at Music Hall
"The Failure of Success." This famous moving picture reel is both a good story and good acting. The story told is of a doctor, who upon making a wonderful discovery, becomes the talk and rage of everybody. He is heralded in society and everywhere. A sinner tempts him, and he becomes enamored of her. Later he neglects his wife and two children on account of her. But he comes to his senses quick enough and all ends well.

The other new moving pictures at Music Hall for Wednesday and Thursday are:
"The New Boss of Bar-X Ranch," Lubin.
"Through the Enemy's Line," Eclipse.
"Pekin, the Walled City," Eclipse.

Electric Sign advertising is no longer an experiment. The most successful firms of world-wide reputation as well as the stores with whom we have done business give us facts that prove the advertising worth of Electric Signs to be far in excess of any method of advertising that has ever been devised for the amount expended.

Look for the most enterprising city of today and you will find one that uses Electric Signs on all available locations and where merchants appreciate the advertising value and use light. I am making and selling the best signs that can be produced, not the cheapest, cut signs that will stand up and give service for years. Recent inventions have reduced the cost and also the cost of maintaining. Public spirit and civic pride demand well lighted business sections in our cities, why not do your part with a well lighted, artistic Electric Sign and increase your business as well.

I charge nothing for estimates or sketches and am always willing to explain details and serve your interests. Respectfully yours,

KITTERY LETTER

The steam yacht "Old Nassau," left this morning for down the Maine coast. She started on Tuesday but put back on account of fog.

The yacht arrivals: Sloop, "Hav-a-hall," of Boston, sloop Friendship of Boston and yawl Vida of Fair Haven.

A renewal of the coal trade by water to Exeter which has been at a standstill since the close of navigation last year, has been apparent recently with the arrival of several schooners in this harbor consigned to the up river city among them the Eva May, Julia Frances, James L. Maloy and L. L. Hamline.

The old steamer Charles F. Mayes, which for many years brought coal from Baltimore to this port, is again in regular service to Portsmouth and her presence makes it seem like old times to habitués of the water front. Her old skipper, Capt. Seth Hand, has however, long been out of his former craft.

Something seems lacking on the water front without the annual visit of the big yachts Thetis and Genesee, which have been in port last week. The Thetis, a converted passenger steamer, is owned by Hiram W. Sibley and the Genesee, an auxiliary schooner yacht, is the property of his brother-in-law, James Sibley Watson. Both crafts hail from Rochester, N. Y., and usually cruise in company although the Thetis failed to pay us a visit last summer.

THE BRAY HOMESTEAD

More About Building Bought for the Pepperrell Association

As previously told in this paper, the old Margery Bray homestead at Kittery Point, in which Sir William Pepperrell, the hero of Louisburg, and Margery Bray were married close to 200 years ago, has been purchased by Frederick H. Wilkins of New York.

Though the transaction now appears in the form of a personal investment on the part of Mr. Wilkins, the property will in turn be transferred to the Pepperrell association, of which he is president, when the association is ready. Ultimately the property will be made into a permanent headquarters of the association.

When Mr. Wilkins' term of president began, he conceived the plan of installing the association in the Bray homestead because of its association with the two Pepperrells, Colonel William and Sir William, whose names the association of descendants was organized to perpetuate.

The property was held by John G. Ruge of Appalachicola, Fla., who formerly was a summer resident at Kittery Point. Mr. Wilkins secured an option on the property in his own name, explained the situation at the annual meeting of the association and was instructed to take possession of the property in behalf of the association.

Though Mr. Ruge has been in Europe throughout the summer, Mr. Wilkins writes that he negotiated the transfer of the property with Mr. Ruge's attorney. The option expired today.

Paintings of the Pepperrells, gifts made to Colonel William by the friendly Indians and the silver service presented Sir William by heroworshippers in England, are among the possessions of the old homestead that will be taken over by the association.

Col. William Pepperrell, the father of Sir William, lived at Kittery late in the seventeenth century. He and John Bray, father of Margery, became the most extensive shipbuilders on the eastern coast and two of the most wealthy and influential men. He built a garrison house that is still at Kittery Point, equipped his employees and the residents of Kittery with arms, drilled them at night and led them in the fight against the unfriendly Indians.

Sir William who succeeded his father in the business, was knighted by the English crown because of the successful expedition he led against Louisburg, considered to be an impregnable fortress. He is said to have been the only American knighted by England.

The real estate records show that the Margery Bray estate went into the possession of Johanna Dearing, a daughter of John Bray, in 1752 and that it later descended to John and Mary Underwood. It remained in the Underwood family about eighty years. The heirs of William Mitchell held the estate until 1906, when Mr. Ruge bought it as an investment.

THE WONDERER

I wonder if that Portsmouth young lady will succeed in getting on the staff of Marilla Ricker as colonel in case that lady is elected governor?

I wonder if a small public bath house would not be appreciated by the small boys and a few adults?

I wonder if there is not a strong kick on about the advance of fare on the toll bridge?

I wonder how the oil for street sprinkling will work?

I wonder how the New York gam shoe men made out recently in closing up a sensational case at Eliot which involved a well known navy man?

I wonder if the audience at Music Hall did not witness the best performance of hypnotism ever seen in this city on Tuesday evening?

I wonder how many new numbers of houses are going up at the expense of the owners?

I wonder why all the politicians are headed for Hampton Beach?

I wonder how long before we are to get another cut in the price of coal?

BIG RIFLE TOURNAMENT STARTED

Camp Perry, Ohio, August 10.—On Monday the first shot in the three weeks rifle tournament to be held on Camp Perry range was fired. Already a large number of teams are on the ground and each day see new arrivals until August 19, when the two days preliminary practice for the great national team match under the auspices of the United States Government, will begin. It is expected that from 45 to 50 states and territories will be represented in this match. For the first time in the history of rifle shooting the entire series of matches of the Ohio state rifle association, the National rifle association and the National board of promotion of rifle practice will be conducted by and under the auspices of the War department. The beautiful Ohio state range at Camp Perry—the largest and best equipped rifle range in the United States—will be turned over to Colonel R. K. Evans, U. S. A., who has been designated as executive officer of the shoot by the Secretary of War and until the close of the National match. Col. Evans will be in supreme command. He will be assisted by Lieut. Col. N. B. Thurston, New York, and Maj. Thomas W. Griffith, of the 28th Infantry, U. S. A. The targets will be manned and the scores recorded by soldiers and marines and the matches will be run off with military precision. During the National matches proper, the competitors will be subsisted at the expense of the United States government, but during the other matches they will be called upon to subsist themselves except so far as funds are allotted for this purpose to the National Guard by the various states and territories. All competitors are supplied with tentage and ordinary camp furniture by the War department and the state of Ohio combined.

The New England passenger association, the Central passenger association, and the Trunk line association have granted a special rate for these matches of two cents a mile, and it is understood that similar rates will be given by the other passenger associations. One of the features of the camp this year will be a ladies' camp on the grounds of the Camp Perry clubhouse adjoining the range. Hereafter the ladies have been encamped some distance from the club.

This will be the fourth and probably the last time that the National rifle matches will be shot at Camp Perry, at least for some years to come. The equipment of this range is superb. It is on the banks of Lake Erie, with the targets to the north and the equipment includes 236 rifle and revolver targets so arranged that they can be fired upon from a common firing point. The range is located 29 miles east of Toledo and 18 miles west of Sandusky and is within easy reach of Cedar Point, Put-in-Bay and other famous Lake Erie resorts.

The week of August 8th to 13th will witness the matches of the Ohio State rifle association. The most important of these matches are the Herk Cup match, the Catrow Cup match, the Governor's Cup, the Adjutants Cup match and the Dupont Individual Tyro match. The Herk Cup trophy match is for teams of eight and is shot at three ranges, 800, 900 and 1000 yards. The first two stages will be shot on Thursday, August 11, and the final stage on Friday, August 12. The trophy is the magnificent silver vase presented by ex-Gov. Myron T. Herk of Ohio. The Catrow Cup match corresponds to the Leach Cup match and is for individuals, seven shots for record at 800, 900 and 1000 yards. It will be shot on Tuesday, August 9. The trophy is the beautiful silver cup presented by Col. H. G. Catrow of the Ohio National Guard and is valued at $500.00.

On Wednesday, August 10 the Adjutants General cup match at 1000 yards will be shot. This is an individual match each competitor firing twenty shots for record and corresponds to the Wimbledon cup match to be shot the following week. The Governors match is the O. S. R. A. match corresponding to the Presidents match in the National rifle association, is an individual match and includes skirmish run and ten record shots at 200, 300, 500 and 1000 yards. It will be shot on Thursday and Friday. The Dupont Individual Tyro match is as its name indicates, for those who have never won a first, second or third prize in the individual rifle matches or of the National rifle association or in the National individual match or who have never shot on one of the first six teams in the National match or who have never been members of an international rifle team representing the United States. The conditions for ten record shots at 800 yards. This is the richest match in prizes carrying 68 prizes aggregating $400. It will be shot Wednesday afternoon.

All of the Ohio State rifle association matches carry cash prizes and most of them a number of medals of gold, silver and bronze. In the Herk Cup trophy match the first prize is $200 and the second $100, the third $50 and the fourth $25. In the other matches the prizes range from $50 downward. In addition there are a number of sweepstake matches for the riflemen and a large number of revolver matches, some of which have guaranteed prize money and others being sweepstakes. One of the most interesting of the revolver matches is the National Police match, which will be shot on Thursday, August 11. It is open to teams of five bona fide police officers representing a single city and is shot at 15, 25 and 50 yards with a revolver of from 32 to 45 calibre. A handsome trophy is offered for this match, which carries six prizes. During the week the National Police individual match will be shot which is open to members of the police forces of the different cities. The matches of the National rifle association of America will begin August 15, and run through August 18 and Friday and Saturday of that week will be set aside for practice for the Na-

YORK BEACH

York Beach annexed another victory to its long string, by defeating the Newburyport Athletic club, 13 to 5, on Railroad field Tuesday. For six innings the beach team batted Worcester, the Newburyport high school pitcher at will, making over fifteen hits. Every man on the home team connected for one or more hits, with the exception of Estelle.

The features of the game was the pitching and batting of Lerner, who struck out twelve men and made three hits for the beach, and the batting and fielding of Page for the visitors. At times the visitors displayed great vim, running off happy double plays and one-hand stops. Constantine, at second, figured in these. The game was called at the end of the eighth inning to allow the visitors to catch the train, Wednesday afternoon the beach team plays the Mohawks at Portland, and Thursday, Kittery. The score:

York Beach 2 2 1 2 2 4 0 —13
Newburyport 0 0 5 0 0 0 0 —5

Batteries—Lerner and Barrett; A. C. Worcester and Gandette. Hits—York Beach, 17; Newburyport, 7. Errors—York Beach, 6; Newburyport 6. Struck out—By Lerner, 12; by Worcester, 5. Base on balls—Off Lerner, 2; off Worcester, 3. Time—2:10. Umpires—Hatch and Ledjard. Attendance—255.

SHOP KEEPERS AND BUSINESS MEN TAKE NOTICE

There will be great competition among the business men and store keepers on Saturday to see whose wagon and store will be the first one decorated with tags for the Cottage Hospital, and several prominent firms have already sent to the committee for the large tags to tie on their horses, wagons and front doors, early Saturday morning. The large tags to be used for buildings are very handsome, printed in red, with a photograph of the Hospital on it.

Be sure to see that your door and your wagon is well covered with tags.

The old County convention at Exeter will be missed by the politicians. It was one of the political gatherings that was always enjoyed.

Take your friends on an outing at the Shoals large sea-going steamer Munnatawket. Leaves wharf foot of Daniel street at 8:20, 11:40, 5:40 p. m. Fare, round trip, 50 cents.

Three ladies reported to the police at midnight that they were followed down Vaughn street by three men, one in uniform, and they asked for police protection. An officer accompanied them as far as their homes.

Stratham old home week will be held August 24, an unusually elaborate program is being arranged for it.

It is a great wonder that accidents are not more frequent on account of the children that are allowed to run high powered automobiles.

The Boston speed boys lost another game on Tuesday, going down before Chicago to the tune of 7 to 4. Philadelphia took another jump toward the pennant by defeating Detroit, and New York lost another game, leaving the standing about the same, with the exception that Philadelphia increased its already great lead on the other teams.

OLD HIGH SCHOOL

What Was Done at the Time it was Dedicated

The coming reopening of the old high school building as a City Hall, which is hoped for on the first of September, brings up recollections of the structure. Mr. Lewis W. Brewster hands us the following interesting program:

Dedication

of the

HIGH SCHOOL HOUSE

Daniel Street, Portsmouth,

On Thursday, Sept. 4, 1856.

Hon. Richard Jenness, Mayor.
High School Committee: Robert O. Treadwell, George Chesley, Richard Tripe.
Building Committee: Abraham Q. Wendell, Moses H. Goodrich, William Tucker.

Printed at the New Hampshire Gazette Office, 1856.

PROGRAMME.

I. DELIVERY OF THE BUILDING TO THE MAYOR BY THE BUILDING COMMITTEE.

II. PRAYER.
By Rev. Dr. Peabody.

III. ODE.
Written for the occasion, by Albert Laighton.

1. There is a Temple towering high,
Within the boundless realm of Time;
A thought-built Palace filled with truth
And mystery sublime.

2. In splendor through its shining dome,
The starry light of Genius falls;
And he who will may enter in,
And, King-like, walk its halls.

3. But at its broad and ample base,
The eager throng must vainly wait,
Till knowledge with her magic key
Unlocks the golden gate!

4. In these fair halls she sits
The magic key within her enthroned hand,
Uplifted to the Temple, reared
In Thought's enchanted land.

5. O ye who love her radiant form,
And strive to gain that Palace gate,
Remember, 'tis a noble thing
"To labor and to wait!"

6. Let no fond dream of wealth or ease,
Your earnest zeal ignobly foil;
The laurel wreath of Fame would fade
Without the dew of Toil.

IV. ADDRESS.
By Rev. Dr. Burroughs.

V. REMARKS.
By Rev. Dr. Lamson and other Clergymen.

VI. DELIVERY OF THE BUILDING TO THE HIGH SCHOOL COMMITTEE, BY THE MAYOR.

VII. ODE.
Written for the Occasion, by Miss Louise Simms.

We call it hallowed ground,
Where first the Pilgrims trod,
And swept the waves of grateful prayer

Across a virgin sod,
Not to a life of ease;
Not for the meed of fame;

But for a loftier range of mind,
Across the deep they came.

'Mid forests unshaded,
The Sabbath dome rose fair;
And in their rude unshelter'd homes

Was heard the call—to prayer!
The wealth of thought they knew,
And with a toll-bell hand,
The path of learning—broad and free—
Open through our favored land.

True to that sacred past,
So brief, and yet so great,
To whomsoever will—These Walls

Be henceforth consecrate,
Not fortune's favored child,
But on the immortal all,
The sunshine of this sphere of sight,
In constant blessing fall.

No forests frown before;
Behind, no dark seas roll;

Young Pilgrims of a brighter day
Press to a higher goal!
Glean from the world's vast field
Of Science, and of Art,
But truth, and purity, keep white
For harvest of the heart.

Thou, Father, unto whom
The dew of youth is fair,
Deepen thine in press on the souls,

Of our great Teacher's care,
The wide arena, Life,
Beam clear in Duty's ray;
And hallowed footsteps make one path
Up to unshadowed day.

VIII. BENEDICTION.

AT THE NAVY YARD

Making a Stay at the Yard
Capt. John Cushman, commander of the steam yacht Wauteris, owned by Randall C. Morgan of New York, is passing a few days at the yard as a guest of Chaplain and Mrs. Curtis H. Dickins.

Nothing To It But Helpers
Five shipfitters' helpers and ten general helpers were called by the labor board today.

This Sounds Good
One of the officials of the general survey board, who looked over the gunboat Paducah and tug Penacook on Tuesday is understood to have slated in conversation, relative to the yard, that the department was planning to keep a regular force employed at the several navy yards, and prevent as much as possible the occasional discharges.

They Think He is All Right
The force of employees in the plumbers shop made a bit on Tuesday in the presentation of badge, billy and other articles to Fred Remick, of Elliot, who guards the town with a squad of gum shoe men through the centennial week. It's a puzzle how the chief ever got home with the load.

Mrs. J. A. Morey and son Gordon of Haverhill have arrived in this city to pass several weeks. Mrs. Morey is accompanied by Miss Mildred Boyce, also of Haverhill.

First Work on the Maine State Highway to Start at Kittery

Beginning on Monday next, a start will be made on the first section of the Maine state highway at Kittery. The contractor for the work, Antonio Pindor, has been in this section several days in consultation with the selectmen of Kittery relative to the work. A stone crusher has been purchased by the town of Kittery and the rock necessary for the work will be dug out and crushed as the crew moves along the highway. All work in York county will be under the supervision of Civil Engineer Wiggan of Kennebunk, who will continue the same until cold weather sets in.
